

GRAND JURY WORK ABOUT COMPLETED

Expected That Investigations Will be Finished Today After Week's Session.

NO ARRESTS HAVE BEEN MADE

Harry Feadler, of This City, Acquitted by Jury of "Blind Tiger" Charge.

After being in session for one week the grand jury was expected to complete its investigations and adjourn today. While no arrests have been made it is reported that several indictments have been returned although the work was not as heavy as during some of the previous sessions. It is rumored that a number of the prisoners held in the county jail will be arrested on indictments returned. It is probable that some of the defendants indicted will be arraigned at this term of court but their trials may not be held until the next term.

The grand jury was called together Monday and were in session continuously. Usually this body begins its investigations at the opening of the court term but the jurors were not called together this term until later because of the prosecutor's race. John H. Underwood, prosecuting attorney, directed the work of the grand jury.

One of the cases tried in circuit court was that of Harry Feadler, of this city, who was acquitted by a jury of a charge of running a "blind tiger." The prosecution attempted to show that he hauled a load of beer to a picnic last summer and sold it at fifteen cents a bottle. The prosecution was conducted by Prosecutor Underwood.

Friday Earl Coffey, of Brownstown, was tried before a jury on a charge of assault and battery on George Neukom. The verdict of guilty was filed about 4 o'clock Friday afternoon and the defendant was fined $1 and costs. This case grew out of the trouble at Brownstown several months ago when Neukom smashed a plate glass in the Sewell Building, occupied by the defendant. Coffey said he was protecting his property, but witnesses stated that he struck at Neukom after he started to leave the building. Quite a number of young men were implicated in the trouble.

NEW TRACTION WAGE SCALE MAY GO IN EFFECT APRIL 1

Understood Negotiations Are Carried on Between Employes and Officials of Company.

It is probable that trainmen of the Terre Haute, Indianapolis & Eastern Traction company and of several of the other interurban roads, including the I. C. & S., operating into Indianapolis will be working under a new wage agreement on and after April 1st.

Although no official statement can be obtained, it is understood that negotiations are now being carried on between the officials and employes of the various companies by which all trainmen will be granted an increase of 1 cent an hour, with more substantial increases for those who have been in the service for an extended length of time. The present scale is from 22 to 32 cents an hour.

THE SEYMOUR ART LEAGUE COMPLETES ORGANIZATION

Constitution Adopted and Plans For the Free Art Exhibit This Spring Are Discussed.

The Seymour Art League completed its organization Friday evening at a meeting held at the Shields High School. The meeting was called to order by Mrs. J. H. Carter, president, and Earl Cox was elected permanent secretary.

The report of the committee of officers, who had been instructed to prepare the constitution, was read by Prof. T. A. Mott and the constitution was adopted. Article 2 gives the object of the Seymour Art League, as follows:

"The object of the League shall be to promote the welfare of art in Seymour, by giving appreciative encouragement to all local art workers; by providing art lectures, by giving one or more free art exhibitions each year which shall contain the work of the art and manual training departments of the Seymour schools, the work of local artists, together with exhibits of work from representative American and foreign artists; by establishing a permanent collection of works of art; and by endeavoring to be influential in all matters pertaining to the beautifying of our city."

A letter from the Herron Art Institute of Indianapolis, was read, offering to the Seymour League a collection of fifty Indiana paintings for the exhibit which will be held here this spring. The offer was accepted provided satisfactory date can be arranged. The plan is to hold the Seymour exhibit the latter part of May and open it to the public free of charge.

The committee on enrollment reported that 136 members have placed their names on the list and they hope to increase the membership to at least 200 before the exhibit will be held in the spring.

The committee on enrollment was instructed also to collect the dues from the members they have secured before the first of May this year. After this year the dues will be payable on or before the annual meeting which will be held the second Friday in January.

The members are quite enthusiastic over the outlook and of the recognition which has already been accorded the League by artists and other art organizations in the state.

Parcel Post Puts U. S. Express Company Out.

COMPETITION TOO MUCH FOR IT

Carrying Company Decides to Wind Up Its Affairs and Go Out of Business, the Continued Extension of the Scope of the Parcel Post System Proving a Form of Competition With Which It Could Not Compete.

New York, March 14.—The United States Express company directors have voted to wind up its affairs and have it go out of business. Stockholders in the other big companies are already anxiously inquiring how long it will be before they follow suit.

The first direct result of the government's competition and the reduction of 16 per cent in express rates, therefore, will be to have thrown 15,000 employees of this company out of work by the time its liquidation is completed. There are about 2,000 employees of the company in New York city. Its yearly payroll is about $6,000,000.

"We could have stood the competition of the parcel post as originally planned," said President Roberts in announcing the end of the company after sixty years of existence. "But we cannot stand it as at present constituted, when it is carrying parcels of almost unlimited weight. We would have continued in business if the makers of the parcel post had not threatened to extend it to consume the express business, increasing the weight of parcels carried and reducing the rates."

"We could have lived and prospered under the original parcel post, but under these new conditions it is impossible."

"And the railroads are just as seriously affected by the reduction of rates as the express companies. They are hurt, not only by the reduction of rates on express business, but by the parcel post, for which they get no pay at all."

The result of the closing up the United States Express company will be far-reaching, according to the belief of Wall street. Already the stockholders of the three other big companies have begun to bombard their officers and directors with letters in which anxious inquiries are being made as to how far the parcel post and the new low rates have already eaten into the capital assets of the companies.

GEORGIAN'S NOVEL SCHEME

Would Have Uncle Sam Buy Northern Mexico For Negroes.

Washington, March 14.—Representative Park of Georgia has introduced in the house a concurrent resolution which essays by a single enactment to solve both the Mexican and the negro problems at a single stroke. The resolution was referred to the committee on foreign affairs.

HOW TO GET RID OF INTERNED MEXICANS

Washington Just Now Facing Perplexing Problem.

Washington, March 14.—Through General Bliss at San Antonio Secretary Garrison has received official notice of the filing in the United States courts in Texas of an application for a general writ of habeas corpus in the cases of the more than 5,000 Mexicans held by United States military authorities in El Paso.

Secretary Garrison suggested to the attorney general that inasmuch as the detention of these Mexicans involved questions of international relations rather than domestic law, it would be advisable that arrangements be made for a conference between representatives of the state, war and justice departments.

While the department of justice will represent the interests of the United States in opposing the granting of the writ of habeas corpus, the state department's wishes in the matter will be the guiding influence for the legal department officers. The detention of the Mexicans has been in practically all instances at the instance of the department of state. The bulk of the Mexicans held at El Paso are persons who crossed into the United States following the battle of Ojinaga. Altogether there are about 6,500 such Mexicans at El Paso.

The war department would be glad to be rid of the care of these Mexicans. The present camp is being run at a cost of $2,500 a day, and it has been necessary to ask congress for special appropriations to pay the bills.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proved Catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only Constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials.

the Upper House.

CHOSEN BY THE PRESIDENT

Opposition of Senator O'Gorman, Chairman of Canal Committee, to Measure Proposed by President Put Him Out of the Question in the Matter, and Oklahoma Senator Was Picked to Lead President's Fight.

Washington, March 14.—Senator Owen of Oklahoma, following a conference with President Wilson, introduced a bill to repeal the provision of the Panama canal bill which exempts American coastwise vessels from payment of tolls. It is said that Senator Owen introduced the bill at the request of the President because Senator O'Gorman, who is chairman of committee on inter-oceanic canals, is opposed to the repeal of the canal tolls exemption. Mr. Owen probably will lead the fight for the repeal bill in the upper house. Its principle opponent in that body will be Senator O'Gorman.

Owing to the increasing demand for time in the general debate which will precede the passage of the repeal bill in the house it is the determination of the administration leaders in the house to await a definite calculation of the required number of hours before passing a rule limiting discussion. Originally it was the intention of Chairman Adamson and his colleagues to limit the debate to fifteen hours but there was such pressure brought to bear from every quarter of the house, most notably from the opposition, that Mr. Adamson has decided to wait until all views have been expressed. It is believed that the rule will be passed next Thursday afternoon and that it will allow probably thirty hours debate.

Sought to Promote Peace.

That the Carnegie fund to promote international peace had set aside a fund of $23,000 to be used in circulating literature to influence sentiment in favor of repeal of legislation giving free tolls through the Panama canal to American coastwise vessels was stated by Dr. James Brown Scott, secretary of the foundation fund, who testified before the house lobby committee. Dr. Scott formerly was solicitor for the state department and resigned to accept a place as secretary for the Carnegie fund.

Senator Walsh, of Montana, who is active in opposing the repeal of the legislation for free tolls, was responsible for having Dr. Scott called as a witness.

Dr. Scott testified that more than a million copies of a pamphlet signed by a number of prominent Americans urging the repeal of the free tolls legislation and dated a year ago had been distributed by the Carnegie Foundation. The witness testified also that 715,000 copies of Senator Root's speech in the senate urging the repeal had been sent out by the society under Senator Root's frank. "It is the business of the Carnegie Foundation to smooth out misunderstandings between nations and in that way to promote peace," said Dr. Scott.

GOSSIP FROM THE CAPITAL

Bits of Washington News of Particular Interest to Hoosiers.

Washington, March 14.—A $75 gold headed cane, ordered by Senator Martine and intended as a birthday gift to Vice-President Marshall remains undelivered. When he heard that the Vice-President would celebrate his sixtieth birthday anniversary, the New Jersey senator decided that the senate ought to show some substantial recognition to its distinguished presiding officer. So Senator Martine took up a collection among his colleagues and bought a gold-headed cane for Mr. Marshall. After he had rapped the senate to order, Vice-President Marshall called Senator Martine to his desk. "Jim," began the Vice-President. "I understand that you have taken up a collection to buy me a gold-headed cane as a birthday present. I appreciate the motive that prompted your doing this, but I do not wish any birthday present." Reluctantly Senator Martine returned the money he collected to the several contributors and canceled the order for the cane.

Senator Kern has presented a memorial of the Emmet Club of Indianapolis, remonstrating against the repeal of that provision in the Panama canal act exempting American coastwise vessels from the payment of tolls; also memorials of sundry citizens of Indianapolis, Covington and Vincennes, remonstrating against the adoption of a national prohibition amendment.

Representative Lieb called on the civil service commission and demand ed that all of the county civil service boards in the First district be reorganized from top to bottom. He says the present boards are made up of Republicans, appointed ten or fifteen years ago, and that it is not fair that they should hold the fourth-class postoffice examinations which are to take place in April.

MURDERER WIELDS RAZOR

Cuts Throat of Cellmate and Then Tries to Kill Himself.

Terre Haute, Ind., March 14.—Louis Stuper, who was sentenced Wednesday to life imprisonment for the murder of a fellow-Servian at Shirleville, cut the throat of William Jacobs in the Vigo county jail and then attempted suicide by cutting his own throat with a razor. Jacobs is in a precarious condition.

The trouble between the two men resulted from a dispute concerning a cake of soap. Stuper's injuries may prove fatal. Jacobs is awaiting trial for murder in the first degree.

More "Suff" Vandalism.

Glasgow, Scotland, March 14.—Millant suffragettes burned to the ground a large unoccupied mansion at Stewarston, belonging to the Free Church of Scotland. A message was left in the vicinity stating "this is in revenge for the brutal arrest of Mrs. Pankhurst."

THE NEXT STEP IN DYNAMITE CASES

Attorneys Fuzzled Over Point of Procedure.

FORMAL ORDER OF HIGH COURT

Notice From United States Supreme Court of Its Denial of a Writ of Certiorari in the Case of the Convicted Dynamiters Leaves Lawyers in Doubt Which of Two Courts Must Take the Next Step.

Indianapolis, March 14.—District Attorney Dailey received a certified copy of the order of the United States supreme court denying a writ of certiorari in the dynamite case, which he once forwarded to the United States circuit court of appeals, asking that court to make the proper order necessary for having the convicted men returned to the federal prison at Leavenworth, Kan.

What the order of the court of appeals will be is in doubt. The district attorney and others who have studied the question disagree as to whether the men will be ordered to return by the higher court direct or whether a mandate will be issued upon the federal court here to do so. The consensus of opinion, however, seems to be that the mandate will be issued upon the federal court in Indiana to return the men to prison, notwithstanding the fact that they were admitted to bail by the higher court.

Indianapolis attorneys also are uncertain whether the order of the higher court will be made before it has considered District Attorney Dailey's petition for a rehearing as to the granting of a new trial to the six men given a new trial or whether it will be withheld until all the cases have been considered. An application for pardon for the convicted men will be presented in a few days to President Wilson.

REFUSES TO TILT THE LID

South Bend Mayor Will Not Wink at Petty Gambling.

South Bend, Ind., March 14.—Fred W. Keller, mayor, has refused to "tilt the lid" to accommodate cigar manufacturers and dealers, as was requested. The petitioners had asked that the mayor close his eyes to such petty gambling as penny-in-the-slot machines, dice boxes and punch boards on the ground that the action of the city administration had thrown dozens of cigarmakers out of work and had compelled two or three of the local factories to close indefinitely.

Mr. Keller in his reply to the committee of cigar men said he was firmly bound by law and his platform of the Citizens' party to eliminate gambling in every form, and that he had no intention of "tilting the lid." He said he did not believe industrial conditions were to suffer as a result of his action, and that he hoped the cigar manufacturers would devote their attention in the future to a campaign for the buying of South Bend goods rather than by attempting to obtain protection for gambling.

Gary Alderman Is Freed.

Gary, Ind., March 14.—Anthony Baukus, former Gary alderman, who was a fugitive from justice for two and a half years, following his arrest for bribery, is once more a free man, the charges against him having been dismissed in the circuit court at Crown Point. In September, 1911, when he was arrested with several Gary officials for bribery, Baukus made a confession; the next day he disappeared. Two months ago he was captured in California and brought back to Gary.

Probably Fatally Burned.

Richmond, Ind., March 14.—John Crawford, forty-five years old, dashed out of his home with his clothing ablaze from head to foot. Men who came to his rescue succeeded in extinguishing the flames and Crawford was removed to a hospital, but physicians say his recovery is improbable. Crawford said he was cleaning a gasoline stove. A torch ignited some gasoline in the tank, causing it to explode, the flames spreading to Crawford's clothing.

Hit on the Head With a Hammer.

Hammond, Ind., March 14.—Incense on firing a furnace may result in the death of A. C. Gale of Indiana Harbor. He and Charles Myers occupy an apartment house and Gale desired to take care of the furnace. Myers objected. A quarrel followed in which Myers struck Gale on the head with a hammer. Gale's skull was fractured and it is feared he will die.

A Girl and a Gun.

Terre Haute, Ind., March 14.—Goldie Stewart, aged fourteen, when playing, took her father's revolver from a drawer, and when it was accidentally discharged the bullet entered her breast, causing a serious wound.

Chronic Stomach Trouble Cured.

There is nothing more discouraging than a chronic disorder of the stomach. Is it not surprising that many suffer for years with such an ailment when a permanent cure is within their reach and may be had for a trifle? "About one year ago," says P. H. Beck, of Wakelee, Mich., "I bought a package of Chamberlain's Tablets, and since using them I have felt perfectly well. I had previously used any number of different medicines, but none of them were of any lasting benefit." For sale by all dealers.

So adept did she prove herself that a Copenhagen shipping company soon gave her command of one of its largest steamers. Captain von Bauditz wears a natty uniform with square cut coat and skirt of the same material. She claims to be the only woman master mariner in the world.

BETTER THAN SPANKING

Spanking does not cure children of bad-swearing. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box W., Notre Dame, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her today if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child, the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urticaria by day or night.

LINKING PUSH TO PULL.

When the manufacturer of a nationally advertised product comes into the columns of this newspaper with his announcements, he is spending money to pull customers into the store of the merchants who keep his wares.

It is up to the merchant to put his push behind the manufacturer's pull.

Push and pull together accomplish much.

Push and pull in this sense mean intelligent co-operation.

That means better service to the public.

And the natural rewards of better service are increased business and profits.

The linking of Push and Pull in the co-operative way is the right way.

STATE BOARD OF FINANCE AUTHORIZES LOAN OF $200,000

Amount Needed to Pay Current Expenses Until Additional Funds Are Provided.

The state board of finance has voted to authorize another loan of $200,000 to pay the state's current expenses until additional revenues are provided by the increased state tax levy voted by the last general assembly.

Treasurer of State Vollmer, as secretary of the finance board, has appealed to about thirty-five banks in Indianapolis, Cincinnati and Chicago to give the state a "lift." By asking outside banks to make bids, Mr. Vollmer hopes to obtain a lower rate of interest than the state was compelled to give in borrowing money a short time ago.

The state already owes Indianapolis, banks $400,000, and the new loan to be negotiated will boost the state's indebtedness established to take care of current expenses to $600,000. The banks invited to make the latest loan are expected to file sealed bids by Monday.

The $200,000 to be borrowed is needed by the state in addition to about $200,000 which has been paid into the state treasury within the last two weeks by county treasurers responding to an advance call for taxes collected. It is expected that other temporary loans will become necessary to defray current expenses before June 30. "After that date, it is said, there will be sufficient revenue because of money collected under the increased tax levy.

SELECTION OF SEED CORN IMPORTANT FOR BIG CROP

Discolored, Poorly Developed Kernels Should be Discarded After Proper Test is Made.

The department of agriculture has issued the following bulletin concerning the necessity of selecting the best of corn for seed:

Requests are now reaching the department for information in regard to preparing seed corn for planting.
The most vital part of seed corn selection work can be performed only at corn ripening time in the fall.
Of thousands of different lots of seed corn planted by the Office of Corn Investigations not one lot of seed that matured properly and was gathered as soon as mature and promptly dried has been found poor of germination.

Every corn grower should now spend a day or more getting his seed corn entirely ready for planting.
The present work consists of discarding undesirable ears, germination testing, nubbing, classifying the ears, shelling, and testing the accuracy of drop of the corn planter.

The quality and productiveness of the seed supply can now be improved by discarding the poorer ears and the poorer kernels.

The seed corn should now be "as dry as a bone," and among the ears that appeared desirable last fall some undesirable ones will now be found. Discard any that have dis-colored kernels or cob or that have a dead appearance. Discard any that are light in weight and any with undesirable kernels, such as small size, very sharp beaks, germs of poor development and appearance, etc.

All the ears retained should show good development and maturity; be heavy for their size, and contain solid-looking kernels of fairly uniform size and shape. These desirable ears should now be tested to determine whether all the kernels will grow.

Although good seed selection and preservation usually make a separate testing of the germination of each ear unnecessary, it is advisable to exercise precaution by demonstrating that the ears will germinate well.
Ten kernels from each of 50 ears can be tested by one of the various methods that have been so well described in literature. This demonstration that 50 representative ears germinate satisfactorily is sufficient evidence of the uselessness of testing each ear of the entire supply. If ears of poor germination should be found, it will be advisable to test each ear of the entire supply in order to be able to discard those in poor germination.

Discard the small, partially developed kernels from the tip of the ears, because such kernels do not yield well. Careful field experiments have demonstrated that they grow into small, barren, and poor producing stalks.

Discard the round, thick kernels from the butts of the ears, because the corn planter can not drop evenly if they are included with the other kernels.

Kernels that have been injured by mice or weevils, or that are otherwise undesirable, should also be discarded before the ears are shelled.

As it is highly advisable that the corn planter should drop an equal number of kernels in each hill, which it can not do unless the kernels are of uniform size and shape, it is advisable to classify the ears before shelling them. Those having large kernels should be included in one class and those having medium-size kernels in another class. Each class should be shelled and bagged separately. To these bags, the planter plates that testing has shown will drop regularly the proper number of kernels, should be tied for convenience at planting time.

Shelled seed corn can be cleaned and graded by expensive, properly adjusted graders, but the method just described of classifying the ears before shelling is more satisfactory.

Seed corn should be shelled by hand. Careful hand shelling pays the man who plants but a few acres, and it pays to a greater degree the man who plants hundreds of acres.
Each ear should be shelled separately into a hand sieve. This permits the chaff from the cob to fall through and the kernels from each ear to be closely inspected before being dumped into the general supply. The value of this close inspection is lost if the ears are run through a corn sheller, and some of the kernels cracked or broken.

Congressional distribution of free seeds for the farmers of the country was unsuccessfully attacked in the House during consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill.

An amendment by Congressman Sumner of Texas to place seed distribution in the hands of the department of Agriculture was voted down, 96 to 36, after a lively debate in which members from agricultural districts resented characterization of seed distribution as "graft."

MAKE EFFORT TO LOCATE FISH HATCHERY NEAR HERE

Local Fishermen Believe That Satisfactory Site Can Be Found Near This City.

Local fishermen are much interested in the plan to locate a state fish hatchery near this city. The question was taken up with George W. Miles, state fish and game commissioner, several months ago and representatives of that department have made several trips here to inspect the locations. Nothing has been done towards establishing the hatchery, however, as it is thought that the state will receive federal aid soon. It is proposed to establish several hatcheries throughout the state.

One location which has been suggested is just north of the city and complies with all the requirements. The representatives of the fish and game department were pleased with the location and its surroundings inquired especially regarding the water supply. They were given an assurance that the stream is never dry as the water comes from ever-flowing springs. Should the hatchery be located here two or more large lakes will be provided and a residence for the keeper of the grounds will be built. Other buildings may also be erected.

At the meeting of the deputy game wardens held here last Saturday the matter was presented again and Mr. Miles stated that he was especially pleased with the shipping facilities which will be given serious consideration before the location is finally settled. He said he would probably return here in a few weeks and take the matter up in detail with those who are interested.

STORY OF THE ROKEBY VENUS

Painting Suffragette Slashed
Has Interesting History.

GOVETED BY AMERICANS.

Fear That England Would Lose Velasquez Masterpiece Led to Public Subscription to Keep It—Acquired by National Gallery Seven Years Ago. Genuineness Once Disputed.

The slashing of the Rokeby Venus by an English suffragette centers world interest upon this wonderful painting.

The Rokeby Venus took its name from Rokeby hall, in Yorkshire, where it hung for many years before it was brought to London. The painting shows Venus half reclining before a mirror. At the time the painting was brought to the national gallery in London, about seven years ago, several Americans tried to buy it. The national gallery had to pay what was then considered an enormous sum to retain the painting in England.

In 1906 the picture was sold under an order of the court of chancery for $150,000 to Messrs. Agnew & Sons, and an outcry was started that America was after the Velasquez. A sum of $225,000 was raised by public subscription and the painting was obtained for the national gallery. When, in April, 1910, a doubt as to its genuineness was set on foot by a critic in the Morning Post Lord Balcarras, who had charge of the fund, announced that he had a standing offer from an art collector to buy the picture for $275,000. It was said at the time the offer came from an American. The genuineness of the masterpiece was soon afterward established to the satisfaction of all art critics.

The painting is one of the very few works of Velasquez which depict the nude human figure. The Spanish inquisition prescribed a fine of 1,500 ducats, excommunication and a year's exile for any one who painted an "immodest picture." In the later years of his life Velasquez painted two pictures of the woman depicted in this painting. One of them was called "Venus and Adonis" and the other "Psyche and Cupid." Both were listed among the pictures in the Alcazar at Madrid in 1690, 1686 and 1700 and then disappeared.

Charles B. Curtis in his book "Velasquez and Murillo" suggests that both paintings were in the palace at Madrid when it was burned in 1734, that "Venus and Adonis" was destroyed and that "Psyche and Cupid" survived and was the painting which eventually fell into the hands of Robert Morrill of Rokeby Park, in Yorkshire, and came to be known as the Rokeby "Venus." There is a black spot near the head of Cupid which has been attributed to scorching in the fire.

Mr. Morrill bought the picture for $2,500 on the recommendation of Sir Joshua Reynolds. Miss May Richardson, the suffragette who mutilated the valuable canvas, was arrested on July 4 last for dropping a petition in the lap of King George while he was driving through Bristol. She served three months for that. The moment she was released she went to Hampton and was arrested there with Miss Rachel Pearce, charged with setting fire to the former home of Chancellor Tristram. Miss Richardson was sentenced to jail for four months, but would take no food and was set free when physicians said she had appendicitis.

MICE HABITS HIS DEFENSE.

Doctor Relies on Natural History to Defeat Claims of His Valet.

Dr. E. Doyen of Paris is being sued by a former valet named Pignol for $210, representing, so Pignol says, advances made to the doctor for traveling expenses and amounts disbursed for the upkeep of 500 white mice, 100 white rats, 90 guinea pigs and 100 rabbits.

The doctor asserts that Pignol has greatly exaggerated the number of animals in his charge.

Dr. Doyen's argument throws an interesting light on the habits of white mice. It appears that white mice can only be kept in batches of four. If a fifth is introduced the intruder is devoured instantly.

Moreover the mother mouse is of so nervous a temperament that if the cage is touched or even looked at during the first days of her maternity she promptly eats the little ones.

Dr. Doyen argues that because of the peculiar habits of white mice it would be quite impossible for Pignol to keep 500 of them in the small space at his disposal.

 TURNS HEN INTO ROOSTER. *****

That the sexes are not so definitely separated as has been assumed has been demonstrated by Professor Pesard of Paris, who, by means of grafting, succeeded in changing the characteristics of a rooster and a hen. The rooster, which is now living a normal existence, has lost his brilliant plumage, spurs and comb, while the hen has developed all those features.

ENGINEER KILLED IN BATTLE WITH YEGGS

Five Others Wounded Before Battle Was Over.

Peoria, Ill., March 14.—A Chicago & Northwestern freight engineer, Arthur Fisher, was shot dead by robbers in the cab of his engine at Manlius, Ill., forty-five miles north of Peoria. The robbers were surprised while stealing merchandise from the freight train. A deputy sheriff was shot through the head and may die. He was pursuing the band. Three robbers were captured and one killed.

The conductor and the brakeman of a freight train on the Northwestern surprised the robbers while they were pitching merchandise out of the train near Manlius. The train was stopped and the men jumped from the freight cars. They ordered the conductor and brakeman back into the caboose and demanded that Fisher detach the engine from the train and proceed down the track. He wavered in meeting the request and was shot through the head. The fireman was shot through the leg.

The station agent at Manlius telegraphed Princeton and Langley, a small station near Manlius for help. In an hour nearly two hundred men were scouring the woods for the hold-up men. Near Sheffield, Ill., the posse came up with the robbers who opened fire and Bert Skoglund, deputy sheriff of Bureau county, was shot through the face, shoulder and throat. He is believed to be fatally hurt. Leslie Beyer, son of the sheriff of Bureau county, was shot in the leg. The wound is not serious.

Two robbers were wounded by members of the posse, one of whom died of his wounds. Three were captured. One is still at liberty.

INDICTMENT IS RESISTED

Mayor Roberts's Attorneys Declare Instrument Is Defective.

Terre Haute, Ind., March 14.—Attorneys for Mayor Roberts have filed a motion in the circuit court, setting up grounds why the indictment of the mayor in connection with the election cases should be quashed.

The motion asserts that the grand jury had no legal authority to act in the case, that the facts stated do not constitute an offense, that the offense is not stated with sufficient certainty, that the indictment is not signed by the prosecutor, and that there is no such officer as special prosecuting attorney.

Embezzlement Charge Fell Flat. Wabash, Ind., March 14.—Charles F. Wolfe, who has been in jail for three months awaiting trial for embezzlement, was found not guilty by a jury in less than half an hour. Wolfe was agent for the Wells Fargo Express company here when he was arrested on a charge of appropriating $1,300.

TISSUE FROM THE DEAD FOR INSANE

Surgeon Who Transplanted
Glands Expects Cures.

DUE TO GARREL DISCOVERY

Rockefeller Institute Expert Found That Secretory Organ of the Human Body Retains Its Vitality, and Chicago Doctor's Experiments Are Based on That Fact.

The surgical world is awaiting the result of remarkable operations performed in Chicago on persons suffering from dementia precox and in which cases glands from dead persons were transplanted to the patients.

These operations took place at the Dunning State Hospital For the Insane and were performed by Dr. G. Frank Lydston, who has been working on the idea of gland implantation for fourteen years, and the discovery of Dr. Alexis Carrel of the Rockefeller institute in New York that some glands live after death showed him the way. The greater part of recent medical and surgical research, the surgeon said, has been directed to studies of the various glands of the body the functions of which heretofore have not been understood or have been understood only slightly.

Tissues Retain Vitality.

Particularly the thyroid gland and the spleen have been under the microscope of research. Dr. Carrel has found the tissues in them retain their vitality long after what is known as death.

Dr. Lydston was assisted in the last two operations by Dr. George Lehniger, superintendent of the Dunning hospital. The patients are a girl seventeen years old, who has been suffering for two years, and a woman, twenty-six years, who has been insane for five years.

The Dunning operations followed an announcement by Dr. Lydston that he had performed a similar operation on himself and also on a woman fifty-six years old.

"We are going to wait for results now," said Dr. Lehniger, "and if we see that the operations have been a success we shall go right ahead and cure more insane patients."

Glands Taken From Dead Girl.

In the operation on the seventeen-year-old girl Dr. Lydston implanted a gland which was a twin to one he implanted in a woman fifty-nine years old nearly a week before. This gland had been kept in "cold storage" since that time. Both the glands he used and the one implanted in the woman six days before were removed seven days earlier from the body of an eighteen-year-old girl who had been killed by a fracture of the skull.

Dr. Lydston believes that the glands which he has implanted have the function of supplying certain secretions to the brain and nerve cells.

THE WILD AND WOOLLY WEST.

National Cowboy Rangers Organized to Perpetuate Spirit of Bygone Days.

The true characteristics of the "wild and woolly west" are to be perpetuated, according to the articles of incorporation filed at Cheyenne, Wyo., for the establishment of the Supreme Ranch of the World, National Order of Cowboy Rangers, with supreme headquarters at Cheyenne. It is a nonprofit-making fraternal order, calculated to give to the real cowboys of the range and associate members whom they may elect all of the elements of freedom and liberty best known to the man of the saddle and lariat.

Ex-President Roosevelt, James C. Dohman, the "cowboy mayor" of Omaha; Lieutenant Governor Ingalls of Kansas and other well known men will be offered places in the supreme ranch. Ranches will be established in each state throughout the Union as well as in every country where the raising of live stock is an important industry.

The Rangers will be a purely fraternal society, having some ritualistic work and secrets which are not to be put into print. The initiation will be held in much the same way as the tenderfoot was made a part of the ranch.

COMMODORE BARRY STATUE.

Parade of Soldiers and Sailors Part of Elaborate Program in Washington.

Representatives of the Irish-American organizations interested in the statue to be erected in Franklin park, Washington, to Commodore John Barry, May 16, have decided to follow the unveiling, which is to take place in the afternoon, with a banquet in the evening and to precede it the day before with a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon.

Some of the nation's foremost orators will be asked to speak at the banquet. Wreaths will be laid on the tomb of Washington at Mount Vernon because of Barry's association with the first president.

The war department will be asked to designate Major General Barry to command a parade of United States soldiers, sailors and marines on duty in and near Washington just before the unveiling.

SCHOOLED IN ALL FARM PROBLEMS

Great State Project About to Be Launched.

GIRLS ARE TO KEEP HOUSE

Elaborate System of Education Soon to Be Tried Out on Long Island Quite as Ambitious an Undertaking as Any of the Kind Ever Attempted and Includes Unique Features.

Some time in April a great group of buildings will begin going up on a tract of land near Farmingdale, N. Y., to be owned by the state of New York, and here young men will be taught practical and scientific farming, while young women will be trained as housewives. They will learn how to cook, sew, take care of the farm home and to economize. At the end of four years they will come out able to do anything and solve any problem likely to confront the woman in the home.

This state school will rank with the most elaborate undertakings of its kind and will have various distinguishing features.

The institution will bear officially the title of the New York State School of Agriculture on Long Island. It will be conducted under the direction of Albert A. Johnson, director of the Milwaukee County School of Agriculture at Wauwatosa.

"I do not think it is possible to teach farming without a farm," says Mr. Johnson in the New York Times. "We have been provided with a laboratory of almost 300 acres, on which the students will do practically all the work. As for the girls and young women, we do not think it possible to teach them homemaking without a home to experiment with, and such will be provided."

How Farm Will Be Laid Out.

The central part of the farm, comprising about sixty acres, will contain the buildings, of which over seventy-five are projected. The relation of one structure to another has been carefully studied.

The grounds of this central group center about a big octagon, which has a band stand in the center. The biggest structure will be the administration building, facing the entrance, but is on the opposite side of the octagon. Besides this, the educational group will consist of the agriculture, the agronomy, the science and the domestic science buildings, the gymnasium, the greenhouse, the library and the store. Just back of these buildings will be the residences of the director and the professors. In the rear of the educational group will be the farm group, consisting of machinery, farm mechanics, poultry and stock judging buildings, horse barn, cow barn, storage barn and power house.

The cow barn will contain forty cows, which will not only produce milk and butter for the school, but will be used for breeding. The horse barn will contain from ten to fifteen horses. Each boy will learn to drive, feed, clean and care for horses, and the latter will be used for judging. In the poultry building, which has big yards behind it, will be studied all the phases of poultry raising.

To the left of the educational group will be the boys' dormitories and their refectory. There will be ten dormitories, each accommodating from fifty to seventy boys. Near by will be a small hospital with a nurse in charge, who will also teach nursing to the girls.

On the right of the educational group will be thirty-five or forty girls' cottages, costing about $1,000 apiece. They will contain eight rooms, and there will be six or eight girls in each house.

Daily Mark For Housekeeping.

The girls will get their first training in the domestic science building, but much of it in their third and fourth years will be in the cottages. They will be marked each day on the way they keep house.

The store will be located near their quarters, and there they will get their training in buying. Then they will have to prepare their food. After a little time the senior girl in each house will be responsible for it, and during the course each girl will have had one year's experience in actual charge of a house.

For each cottage there will be flower and vegetable gardens, and the girls will be expected to take care of these. Each house will be different from the rest, and the whole group will be a sort of restricted village, the houses being mostly of a bungalow type.

The eventual capacity of the school will be 1,000 students. Sessions will take place during the twelve months of the year.

Profits In Cauliflowers.

Efficiency methods are helping the farming sections of Long Island, to judge by the work of the Long Island Cauliflower Growers' association. The association helped farmers to sell $500,000 worth of cauliflowers last year, and upon a capital of only $6,000 has built up in two years a $25,000 surplus. Probably it will pay an extra 15 per cent dividend this year. The officers charged $65 for their services during the year.

LIKE GABRIEL'S PITIFUL SEARCH FOR EVANGELINE.

Missionary Finds Wife After Three Year Hunt in Wilds of China.

After wandering for three years through the wildest parts of central China in search of his wife and child, Dr. George Hadden, a missionary from Ireland, tells the story of his adventures. The wife and baby were found in Hongkong.

In his hunt he covered 10,000 miles, traversed Hunan province to the border of Tibet, was pelted with clods by 2,000 semibarbarous Chinese at Kuei yangchow and had many thrilling escapes from death.

The Haddens were stationed at the mission of Yungchowfu, where Dr. Hadden was a missionary for seven years. They were separated in March, 1910, by the Shanghai riots on the Yang river, a tributary to the Yangtze river. Mrs. Hadden was carried to Hangchow, where her child was born on St. Patrick's day. Dr. Hadden was carried up the river, losing knowledge of his wife's whereabouts.

He wrote many letters, none of which brought him news of his wife, and, having no other method of travel, he walked from place to place through the great interior of the country.

When making his way across the plowed fields of Kueiyangchow the half civilized natives regarded him as a devil in flesh and blood and followed him 2,000 strong. He felt to run would be to invite destruction, so he walked calmly before the excited horde, but he admitted he walked "rather fast."

After three years of travel he finally got back to his old station in Yungchowfu and there learned that his wife was in Hongkong, where he joined her, and for the first time saw his boy, who had been named Patrick by Mrs. Hadden because he was born March 17. They went to Canton and are now going to their home in Ireland on leave of absence.

FOR WHAT IS SCHOOL USED?

Federal Bureau to Study the Social Center Movement.

The federal bureau of education is undertaking, with the aid of the Russell Sage foundation, a most extensive investigation into the wider use of schools, especially the social center idea as it has been developed in Kansas City.

Commissioner Claxton, head of the bureau, has sent out more than 1,300 letters to school superintendents in towns or cities of more than 4,000 population asking for a complete record of all after school uses for the buildings during the months of February, March and April. These blanks when filled out will be returned to the bureau of education for use in compiling the most complete report yet made on the subject of the use of school buildings.

The department of education is a strong advocate of the use of the schools as social centers and for public meetings and lectures. It hopes by gathering the different plans followed throughout the nation in making the school buildings more useful each city can get new ideas from the reports that will be issued.

A BEGGAR'S HUMP OF GOLD.

Man Who Ate From Ash Cans Had $34,000.

William Kahler, aged seventy, has been a hunchback beggar in San Francisco for twenty years, eating the food he found in ash cans and sleeping wherever he could find shelter. A patrolman arrested the old man and took him to the lockup so he might have a comfortable bed.

In searching Kahler it was found that his "hump" was uncommonly hard, and investigation revealed that it was not a deformity, but a tin box packed with gold coins and paper money. Various false pockets in Kahler's clothes were emptied of additional money. When all was counted the total was found to be $11,000.

Kahler's "hump" also contained three bank books that showed deposits amounting to $23,000. He was held on a charge of vagrancy.

UNCLE SAM AT PANAMA SHOW

Exhibitions of Every Phase of Government Activity.

HOW OUR MONEY IS MINTED

Elaborate Plans For This Public Demonstration—Army and Navy, Postal Service, Fish Commission and Bureau of Standards Among Departments to Be Represented.

The United States government is preparing a series of elaborate exhibits for the Panama-Pacific International exposition, which will be distributed among all of the various exhibit palaces and will show every phase of the government's activities.

A feature of a sightseeing trip through Washington always is a visit to the bureau of engraving, where the actual making of the paper notes is shown. A reproduction of this part of the treasury will be found in San Francisco, and visitors to the exposition will be enabled to witness the actual manufacture of United States money in one of the exhibit palaces. The machinery that turns out millions of dollars a day will be taken direct from one of the United States mints to the exposition, and every detail of the mintage displayed.

Few realize just what the United States fish commission is doing for the American people, and the government is now preparing the construction of an aquarium, and, in connection with it, the hatchery in which the various stages of development from the spawn to the full sized fish will be shown.

It is the fish commission, explains the New York Post, that keeps the streams and lakes stocked with the edible fishes, and by scientific breeding prevents the extinction of species. The spawn are hatched in numbers ranging into the billions, yet despite the remarkable care with which they are handled only a small percentage of these ever attain maturity. Large cans of the eggs and the hatched fish are transported from the hatcheries to the streams and must be fed with air every few moments. This requires constant care and exceptional knowledge.

Big Gun Practice.

For many years the privilege of witnessing actual practice with the big disappearing coast defense guns has been greatly limited, and only acquaintance with army men or influence in Washington could gain the desired permission.

The government now has consented to permit the visitors to the exposition to have free access to forts adjoining the exposition grounds. Daily practice on the big guns with subcaliber charges will be held and weekly target practice with full charges. Each time one of these guns is fired with a full charge the cost to the government amounts to several hundred dollars.

In addition to this unusual feature, several regiments of soldiers stationed at the Presidio, the largest army post of the west, will maneuver and hold daily drills and exercises and may even compete with detachments of troops from foreign nations attending the international military tournament.

Scene Showing Busy Mail Car.

In the Palace of Transportation a postal car will be shown in its entirety with the postal clerks actually operating a railway mail car. There will also be on the grounds a small post-office, where letters may be mailed. Every detail of the operation of checking, handling and transmitting mail may be seen here.

On the sea front of the exposition site there will be maintained and operated a United States government life saving station, fully equipped, where exhibition drills will be held daily.

Work done on battleships will be displayed and explained in detail by the officers in charge, and the education of the enlisted men will be shown.

The bureau of standards is one of the least known departments of the government, yet its work is without question highly important. This department also will be represented by an elaborate exhibit.

BIG PRIZES FOR WOMEN.

Chicago Plan For Recognition of Notable Achievements.

A movement which is receiving considerable support and arousing much enthusiasm has been inaugurated by the Chicago Woman's Association of Commerce, whereby American recognition is to be accorded the notable achievements of women by the bestowal of a series of prizes similar to the Nobel prizes. It is tentatively suggested that the prizes range from $10,000 to $40,000.

The plan will be presented in June to a body of women consisting of the great women writers, artists, musicians, financiers, scientists and thinkers of the age. Calls are being sent all over the world to summon these women to a meeting in Chicago to be held between the 13th and 20th of June.

The biennial convention of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, which will meet in Chicago at that time, will call thousands of women from all over the world to that city. A congress of women's achievements to be held by the Woman's Association of Commerce at that time will provide an appropriate setting for the meeting.

CHAPTER VI.

Southlook.

Sara Wrاندall's house in the country stood on a wooded knoll overlooking the sound. It was rather remotely located, so far as neighbors were concerned. Her father, Sebastian Gooch, shrewdly foresaw the day when land in this particular section of the suburban world would return dollars for pennies, and wisely bought thousands of acres: woodland, meadowland, beachland and hills, inserted between the environs of New York city and the rich towns up the coast. Years afterward he built a commodious summer home on the choicest point that his property afforded, named it Southlook, and transformed that particular part of his wilderness into a millionaire's paradise, where he could dawdle and putter to his heart's content, where he could spend his time and his money with a prodigality that came so late in life to him that he made waste of both in his haste to live down a rather parsimonious past.

Two miles and a half away, in the heart of a scattered colony of proud New Yorkers, was the country home of the Wrاندalls, an imposing place and older by far than Southlook. It had descended from well-worn and time-stained ancestors to Redmond Wrاندall, and, with others of its kind, looked with no little scorn upon the modern, mushroom structures that sprouted from the seeds of trade. There was no friendship between the old and the new. Each had recourse to a bitter contempt for the other, though consolation was small in comparison.

It was in the wooded by-ways of this despoiled domain that Challis Wrاندall and Sara, the earthly daughter of Midas, met and loved and defied all things supernal, for matches are made in heaven. Their marriage did not open the gates of Nineveh. Sebastian Gooch's paradise was more completely ostracized than it was before the disaster. The Wrاندalls spoke of it as a disaster.

Clearly the old merchant was not over-pleased with his daughter's choice, a conclusion permanently established by the alteration he made in his will a year or two after the marriage. True, he left the vast estate to his beloved daughter Sara, but he fastened a stout string to it, and with this string her hands were tied. It must have occurred to him that Challis was a prodigal in more ways than one, for he deliberately stipulated in his will that Sara was not to sell a foot of the ground until a period of twenty years had elapsed. A very polite way, it would seem, of making his investment safe in the face of considerable odds.

He lived long enough after the making of his will, I am happy to relate, to find that he had made no mistake. As he preceded his son-in-law into the great beyond by a scant three years, it readily may be seen that he wrought too well by far. Seventeen unnecessary years of proscriptio remained, and he had not intended them for Sara alone. He was not afraid of Sara, but for her.

When the will was read and the condition revealed, Challis Wrاندall took it in perfect good humor. He had the grace to proclaim in the bosom of his father's family that the old gentleman was a father-in-law to be proud of. "A canny old boy," he had announced with his most engaging smile, quite free from rancor or resentment. "Challis was well acquainted with himself."

And so the acres were strapped together snugly and firmly, without so much as a town lot protruding.

So impressed was Challis by the far-sightedness of his father-in-law that he forthwith sat him down and made a will of his own. He would not have it said that Sara's father did a whit better by her than he would do. He left everything he possessed to his wife, but put no string to it, blandly implying that all danger would be past when she came into possession. There was a sort of grim humor in the way he managed to present himself to view as the real and ready source of peril.

Sara and Hetty did not stay long in town. The newspapers announced the return of Challis Wrاندall's widow and reporters sought her out for interviews. The old interest was revived and columns were printed about the murder at Burton's inn, with sharp editorial comments on the failure of the police to clear up the mystery.

"I shall ask Leslie down for the week-end," said Sara, the third day after their arrival in the country. The house was huge and lonely, and time hung rather heavily despite the glorious uplift of spring.

Hetty looked up quickly from her book. A look of dismay flickered in her eyes for an instant and then gave way to the calmness that had come to dwell in their depths of late. Her lips parted in the sudden impulse to cry out against the plan, but she checked the words. For a moment her dark, questioning eyes studied the face of her benefactress; then, as if nothing had been revealed to her, she allowed her gaze to drift pensively out toward the sunset sea.

They were sitting on the broad verandah overlooking the sound. The dusk of evening was beginning to steal over the earth. She laid her book aside.

"Will you telephone in to him after dinner, Hetty?" went on Sara, after a long period of silence.

Again Hetty started. This time a look of actual pain flashed in her eyes.

"Would not a note by post be more certain to find him in the—?" she began hurriedly.

"I dislike writing notes," said Sara calmly. "Of course, dear, if you feel that you'd rather not telephone him, I can—"

"I dare say I am finicky, Sara," apologized Hetty in quick contrition. "Of course he is your brother. I should remember—"

"My brother-in-law, dear," said Sara, a trifle too literally.

"He will come often to your house," went on Hetty rapidly. "I must make the best of it."

"He is your friend, Hetty. He admires you."

"I cannot see him through your eyes, Sara."

"But he is charming and agreeable, you'll admit," persisted the other.

"He is very kind, and he is devoted to you. I should like him for that."

"You have no cause for disliking him."

"I do not dislike him. I—I am—Oh, you always have been so thoughtful, so considerate, Sara, I can't understand your failing to see how hard it is for me to—to—well, to endure his open-hearted friendship."

Sara was silent for a moment. "You draw a pretty fine line, Hetty," she said gently.

Hetty flushed. "You mean that there is little to choose between wife and brother? That isn't quite fair. You know everything, he knows nothing. I wear a mask for him; you have seen into the very heart of me. It isn't the same."

Sara came over and stood beside the girl's chair. After a moment of indecision she laid her hand on Hetty's shoulder. The girl looked up, the ever-recurring question in her eyes.

"We haven't spoken of—of these things in many months, Hetty."

"Not since Mrs. Wrاندall and Vivian came to Nice. I was upset—dreadfully upset then, Sara. I don't know how I managed to get through with it."

"But you managed it," pronounced Sara. Her fingers seemed to tighten suddenly on the girl's shoulder. "I think we were quite wonderful, both of us. It wasn't easy for me."

"Why did we come back to New York, Sara?" burst out Hetty, clasping her friend's hand as if suddenly spurred by terror. "We were happy over there. And free!"

"Listen, my dear," said Sara, a hard note growing in her voice: "this is my home. I do not love it, but I can see no reason for abandoning it. That is why we came back to New York."

Hetty pressed her friend's hand to her lips. "Forgive me," she cried impulsively. "I shouldn't have complained. It was detestable."

"Besides," went on Sara evenly, "you were quite free to remain on the other side. I left it to you."

"You gave me a week to decide," said Hetty in a hurried manner of speaking. "I—I took but twenty-four hours—less than that. Over night, you remember. I love you, Sara. I could not leave you. All that night I could feel you pulling at my heart strings, pulling me closer, and holding me. You were in your room, I in mine, and yet all the time you seemed to be bending over me in the darkness, urging me to stay with you and love you and be loved by you. It couldn't have been a dream."

"It was not a dream," said Sara, with a queer smile.

"You do love me?" tensely.

"I do love you," was the firm answer. Sara was staring across the water, her eyes big and as black as night itself. She seemed to be looking far beyond the misty lights that bobbed with nearby schooners, far beyond the yellow mass on the opposite shore where a town lay cradled in the shadows, far into the fast darkening sky that came up like a wall out of the east.

Hetty's fingers tightened in a warmer clasp. Unconsciously perhaps, Sara's grip on the girl's shoulder tightened also; unconsciously, for her thoughts were far away. The younger woman's pensive gaze rested on the peaceful waters below, taking in the slow approach of the fog that was soon to envelop the land. Neither spoke for many minutes: inscrutable thinkers, each a prey to thoughts that leaped backward to the beginning and took up the puzzle at its inception.

"I wonder—" began Hetty, her eyes narrowing with the intensity of thought. She did not complete the sentence.

Sara answered the unspoken question. "It will never be different from what it is now, unless you make it so."

Hetty started. "How could you have known what I was thinking?" she cried in wonder.

"It is what you are always thinking, my dear. You are always asking yourself when will I turn against you," "Sara!"

"Your own intelligence should supply the answer to all the questions you are asking of yourself. It is too late for me to turn against you." She abruptly removed her hand from Hetty's shoulder and walked to the edge of the verandah. For the first time, the English girl was conscious of pain. She drew her arm up and cringed. She pulled the light scarf about her bare shoulders.

The butler appeared in the doorway. "The telephone, if you please, Miss Castleton. Mr. Leslie Wrاندall is calling."

The girl stared. "For me, Watson?"

"Yes, miss."

Hetty had risen, visibly agitated.

"What shall I say to him, Sara?" she cried.

"Apparently it is he who has something to say to you," said the other, still smiling. "Wait and see what it is. Please don't neglect to say that we'd like to have him over Sunday."

"A box of flowers has just come up from the station for you, miss," said Watson.

Hetty was very white as she passed into the house. Mrs. Wrاندall resumed her contemplation of the fog-screened sound.

"Shall I fetch you a wrap, ma'am?" asked Watson, hesitating.

"I am coming in, Watson. Open the box of flowers for Miss Castleton. Is there a fire in the library?"

"Yes, Mrs. Wrاندall."

"Mr. Leslie will be out on Saturday. Tell Mrs. Conkling."

"The evening train, ma'am?"

"No. The eleven-thirty. He will be here for luncheon."

When Hetty hurried into the library

"Good God, Sara!" Cried the Girl in Horror.

a few minutes later, her manner was that of one considerably disturbed by something that has transpired almost on the moment. Her cheeks were flushed and her eyes were reflectors of a no uncertain distress of mind. Mrs. Wrاندall was standing before the fireplace, an exquisite figure in the slinky black evening gown which she affected in these days. Her perfectly modelled neck and shoulders gleamed like pink marble in the reflected glow of the burning logs. She wore no jewelry, but there was a single white rose in her dark hair, where it had been placed by the whimsical Hetty an hour earlier as they left the dinner table.

"He is coming out on the eleven-thirty," said the girl nervously, "unless you will send the motor in for him. The body of his car is being changed and it's in the shop. He must have been jesting when he said he would pay for the petrol—I should have said gasoline."

Sara laughed. "You will know him better, my dear," she said. "Leslie is very light-hearted."

"He suggested bringing a friend," went on Hetty hurriedly. "A Mr. Booth, the portrait painter."

"I met him in Italy. He is charming. You will like him, too, Hetty." The emphasis did not escape notice.

"It seems that he is spending a fortnight in the village, this Mr. Booth, painting spring lambs for rest and recreation. Mr. Leslie says."

"Then he is at our very gates," said Sara, looking up suddenly.

"I wonder if he can be the man I saw yesterday at the bridge," mused Hetty. "Is he tall?"

"I really can't say. He's rather vague. It was six or seven years ago."

"It was left that Mr. Wrاندall is to come out on the eleven-thirty," explained Hetty. "I thought you wouldn't like sending either of the motors in."

"And Mr. Booth?"

"We are to send for him after Mr. Wrاندall arrives. He is stopping at the inn, wherever that may be."

"Poor fellow!" sighed Sara, with a grimace. "I am sure he will like us immensely if he has been stopping at the inn."

Hetty stood staring down at the blazing logs for a full minute before giving expression to the thought that troubled her.

"Sara," she said, meeting her friend's eyes with a steady light in her own, "why did Mr. Wrاندall ask for me instead of you? It is you he is coming to visit, not me. It is your house. Why should—"

"My dear," said Sara glibly, "I am merely his sister-in-law. It wouldn't be necessary to ask me if he should come. He knows he is welcome."

"Then why should he feel called upon to—"

"Some men like to telephone, I suppose," said the other coolly.

"I wonder if you will ever understand how I feel about—about certain things, Sara."

"What, for instance?"

"Well, his very evident interest in me," cried the girl hotly. "He sends me flowers—this is the second box this week—and he is so kind, so very friendly, Sara, that I can't bear it—I really can't."

Mrs. Wrاندall stared at her. "You can't very well send him about his business," she said, "unless he becomes more than friendly. New, can you?"

"But it seems so—so horrible, so beastly," groaned the girl.

Sara faced her squarely. "See here, Hetty," she said levelly, "we have made our bed, you and I. We must lie in it—together. If Leslie Wrاندall chooses to fall in love with you, that is his affair, not ours. We must face every condition. In plain words, we must play the game."

"What could be more appalling than to have him fall in love with me?"

"The other way 'round would be more dramatic, I should say."

"Good God Sara!" cried the girl in horror. "How can you even speak of such a thing?"

"After all, why shouldn't—" began Sara, but stopped in the middle of her suggestion, with the result that it had its full effect without being uttered in so many cold-blooded words. The girl shuddered.

I wish, Sara, you would let me unburden myself completely to you," she pleaded, seizing her friend's hands. "You have forbidden me—"

Sara jerked her hands away. Her eyes flashed. "I do not want to hear it," she cried fiercely. "Never, never! Do you understand? It is your secret. I will not share it with you. I should hate you if I knew everything. As it is, I love you because you are a woman who suffered at the hand of one who made me suffer. There is nothing more to say. Don't bring up the subject again. I want to be your friend for ever, not your confidante. There is a distinction. You may be able to see how very marked it is in our case. Hetty. What one does not know, seldom hurts."

"But I want to justify myself—"

"It isn't necessary," cut in the other so peremptorily that the girl's eyes spread into a look of anger. Whereupon Sara Wrاندall threw her arm about her and drew her down beside her in the chaise-louge. "I didn't mean to be harsh," she cried. "We must not speak of the past, that's all. The future is not likely to hurt us, dear. Let us avoid the past."

"The future!" sighed the girl, staring blankly before her.

"To appreciate what it is to be," said the other, "you have but to think of what it might have been."

"I know," said Hetty, in a low voice. "And yet I sometimes wonder if—"

Sara interrupted. "You are paying me, dear, instead of the law," she said gently. "I am not a harsh creditor, am I?"

"My life belongs to you. I give it cheerfully, even gladly."

"So you have said before. Well, if it belongs to me, you might at least permit me to develop it as I would any other possession. I take it as an investment. It will probably fluctuate."

"Now you are jesting!"

"Perhaps," said Sara laconically.

The next morning Hetty set forth for her accustomed tramp over the roads that wound through the estate. Sara, the American, dawdled at home, resenting the chill spring drizzle that did not in the least discourage the Englishwoman.

She came to the bridge by the mill, long since deserted and now a thing of ruin and decay. A man in knickerbockers stood leaning against the rail, idly gazing down at the trickling stream below. The brier pipe that formed the circuit between hand and lips sent up soft blue coils to float away on the drizzle.

She passed behind him, with a single furtive, curious glance at his handsome, undisturbed profile, and in that glance recognized him as the man she had seen the day before.

When she was a dozen rods away, the tall man turned his face from the stream and sent after her the long-restrained look. There was something akin to cautiousness in that look of his, as if he were afraid that she might turn her head suddenly and catch him at it. Something began stirring in his heart, the nameless something that awakens when least expected. He felt the subtle, sweet femininity of her as she passed. It lingered with him as he looked.

She turned the bend in the road a hundred yards away. For many minutes he studied the stream below without really seeing it. Then he straightened up, knocked the ashes from his pipe, and set off slowly in her wake, although he had been walking in quite the opposite direction when he came to the bridge—and on a mission of some consequence, too.

There was the chance that he would meet her coming back.

COULD NOT STAND ON FEET

Mrs. Baker So Weak—Could Not Do Her Work—Found Relief In Novel Way.

Adrian, Mich. — "I suffered terribly with female weakness and backache and got so weak that I could hardly do my work. When I washed my dishes I had to sit down and when I would get so weak that I would have to get a drink every few minutes, and before I did my dusting I would have to lie down. I got so poorly that my folks thought I was going into consumption. One day I found a piece of paper blowing around the yard and I picked it up and read it. It said 'Saved from the Grave,' and told what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women. I showed it to my husband and he said, 'Why don't you try it?' So I did, and after I had taken two bottles I felt better and I said to my husband, 'I don't need any more,' and he said 'You had better take it a little longer anyway.' So I took it for three months and got well and strong." — Mrs. ALONZO E. BAKER, 9 Tecumseh St., Adrian, Mich.

Charming Innovations in Chic Suits

Real charm has been given the tailored suits this year.

All the severe, straight lines of the tailor-made have been brought into graceful curves, lines of drapery, and here and there a hint of shirring.

Bischof has idealized these mandates of Dame Fashion in the suits that are now on display at our store. Each is a picture in itself!

Fashion has introduced many new colors—it's surprising how much less trying they are than in previous years.

Lovely shades of Geranium, Apricot, Fox Glove and Oriole, dainty tints of Seville Blue, of Peridot and Eucalyptus Green will delight your eye.

Miracle-workers have been at the fabric looms, we are sure, so novel and decidedly lovely are the materials Bischof has used in his productions.

Don't be content to read about these models that are delighting more and more women every day. Let us show them to you today—have the best of the new things for your wardrobe.

A man who owns several dogs stopped a friend on the street this morning and asked him what he thought about the dog license ordinance. He explained that he could not read but had been informed that owners were required to purchase "1914 tags" before March 23 or they would be prosecuted. He emphatically asserted that he thought it was an outrage to enforce such an ordinance as his dog was small and if the canine had to wear all of the 1,914 tags he would be covered with them. He said he had bought one and did not see the necessity of 1,913 duplicate checks. The friend explained the provisions of the ordinance and the happy owner of the dogs whistled to three of them that had followed him up town and started home rejoicing.

CATARRH OF THE THROAT

Is Liable to Produce Catarrhal Deafness

CLARENCE BOWMAN.

A Case of Catarrhal Deafness.

Mrs. Wm. Bowman, R. F. D. 1, Coon Rapids, Iowa, writes:

"Some time ago I wrote you about my little boy, Clarence, five years of age. He was troubled with his ears. They were very sensitive to the touch, and he was quite deaf at times. He seemed to be worse after catching cold. I had taken him to doctors, but they did not seem to be able to relieve him, and I was very much afraid he would lose his hearing entirely. He was getting more deaf every day."

"I wrote to you for advice, and you prescribed Peruna. I began giving it to him, and can now say that he is entirely cured. He is now well and hearty and can hear perfectly."

Catarrh Causes Many Diseases.

Many diseases are caused by taking cold. A cold is very likely to settle in the nose, causing nasal catarrh. It may settle in the upper part of the throat, called the nasal pharyngeal space. In this space are two little tubes called eustachian tubes, that lead to the middle ear.

If the catarrh settles in the pharyngeal space it may follow the mucous membrane through the eustachian tubes into the middle ear. If it does it will cause noises in the ear, and later on be sure to cause deafness.

Catarrh of the throat may follow the eustachian tubes up into the middle ear without causing much concern on the part of the patient. The partial loss of hearing is apt to be overlooked. A person may lose half his hearing before he knows it.

For instance, suppose a man can hear his watch four feet from the ear. If he loses his hearing to the extent that he can only hear the tick of his watch two feet from the ear he may not suspect it at all. His hearing is good enough for ordinary purposes. He goes on without the slightest suspicion that he is losing his hearing. He may have ringing in the ear, or cracking and snapping sounds in the ear, or a feeling of pressure in the ear, but he is not aware that he is losing his hearing.

Testing the Hearing.

It is a good thing to test your hearing with a watch. First hold the watch against your ear, then move it gradually away from the ear and see how far away from the watch you can actually hear it tick. Try it on the other side and see if both ears are alike. If you find that you are unable to hear the watch on both sides alike and at a distance of four feet from the ear, you may know that deafness has already begun. You should begin taking Peruna at once. Gargle the throat with cold, strong salt water, as directed in the "I'lls of Life," sent free by Peruna Co., Columbus, Ohio. Persist in this treatment until a cure is effected.

The Best Way to Gargle.

Sometimes catarrh of the nasal pharyngeal space will cause an accumulation of secretions in the throat, that completely fill the space. Unless these secretions are promptly removed by frequent gargling polyp may be formed. Once formed the polyp or adenoids, as they are sometimes called, will require a long time with the gargling to remove. Gargling according to the proper method will sometimes remove polyp or adenoids, and no surgical operation is required.

In order to understand exactly what is meant by proper gargling send for a free copy of the "I'lls of Life." During the whole course of gargling Peruna must be taken according to directions on the bottle.

People who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets.

Cut out the opening in the tuna's mouth and let each contestant select a small button that will go into the opening. The contestants (4 may try at one time) place their buttons on the different numbers and thump the button in direction of the tuna's mouth. If the button goes in the player makes the number of points from which the shot was made. The first to make a total of 10 points wins the game. You'll find it's better to paste this whole section on heavy cardboard before playing.

ANNA BELLE Visits Palm Beach

My friends—I know you'll be surprised to know that I'm now in Florida for a few days. You know Sister Mary always comes to Palm Beach for awhile each winter and she insisted that I go with her this time. My school teacher kindly consented to my being away a few days and so here I am. Everything is just fine down here and if I only had the time I'd go over to Jacksonville as I have several friends there. But you see I have to stay with Sister Mary as much as I can. Just before I left home the mailman brought me a great batch of letters from my friends all over the country telling me of their wonderful success in ANNA BELLE SEWING SOCIETY work. This makes me very happy indeed and I'm sure you get lots of happiness in knowing you are doing so much good in the world. If you haven't sent for your Certificate of Membership why not do so now? Just sit down and write me care this paper, enclose a two-cent stamp for postage and I'll be so glad to send you one. If you are an officer in your Society will send as many as you wish for your members. Don't forget to tell me of the progress you're making and the good you're doing for the poor in your locality. Lovingly,
Anna Belle
